Fearless Critical Thinking

"The key to winning consistently is to consistently do better – not just more. This requires fearless critical thinking."

Is critical thinking critical to team dynamics?

Yes. We enhance team performance with disciplined, rational, openminded, informed thinking.

We challenge others' thinking – don't we? Are we afraid to challenge our own? Are we willing to vacate familiar preconceptions that we have always relied on in making vital decisions? Do we trust our teammates, or are we afraid to see who they truly are and how they really think?

Critical thinking embraces fear of the unknown. It de-villainizes and actually befriends differences as it values the unique traits and talents of others. This is crucial to building a fearless culture.

Extraordinary leaders see the ideas and feelings of others without fear or judgement, building diverse, mutually reliant teams and effective, profitable cultures.
